

CHILDREN IN THE BIBLE

Who am I? Solve the maze to find out!

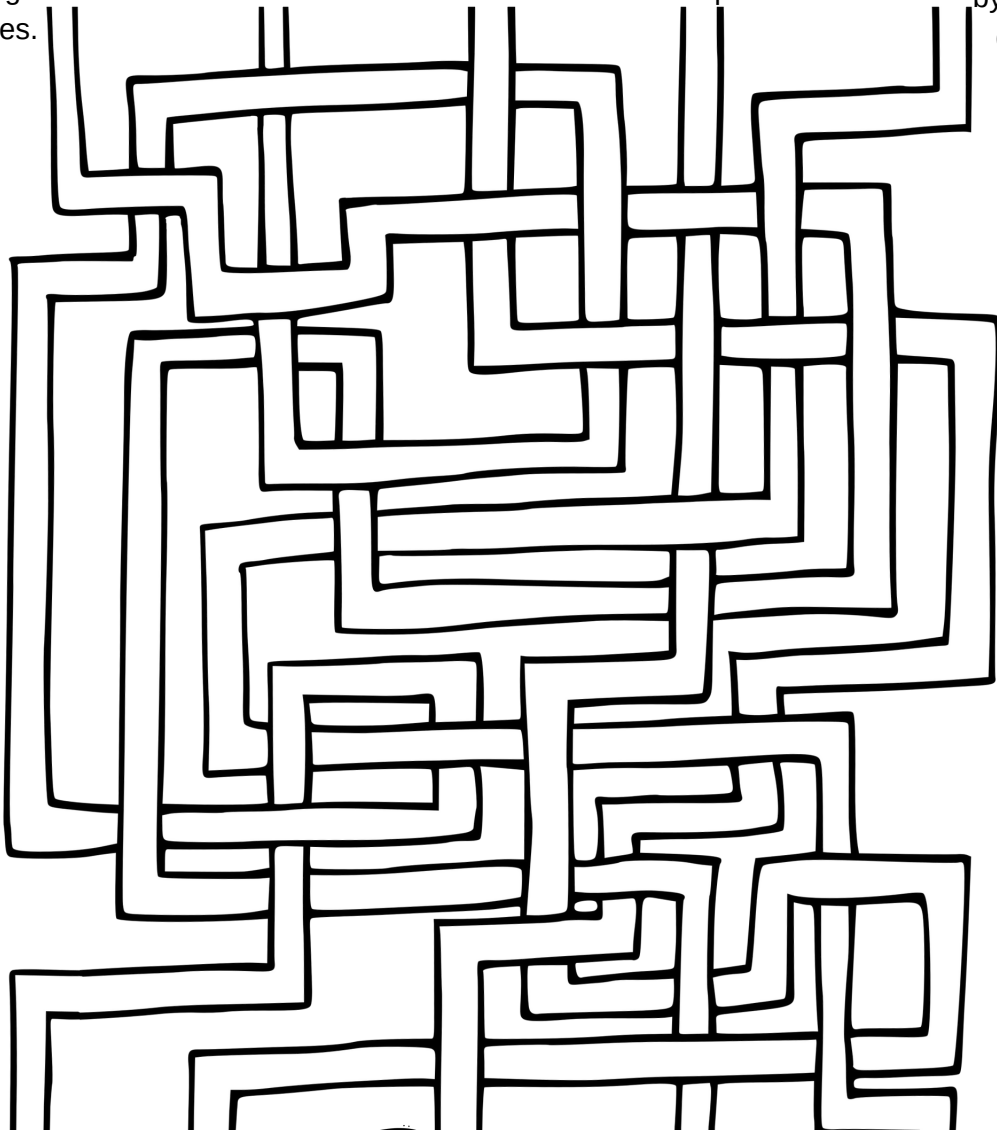

My older brothers left me to watch the sheep when Samuel came to anoint a new king and when the army of Israel was fighting the Philistines.

I babysat my little brother while he was floating in a basket in the river.

My older brothers hated me, especially when I got a beautiful coat from our dad.

I became king of Judah when I was only eight years old - and I repaired the temple of God.

When I was a baby, my mom placed me in a basket in a river. Later, I was adopted by Pharaoh's daughter.

Who am I? Read the clues below and see if you can remember who each child is.
If you are having troubles, use the secret code!

My older brothers left me to watch the sheep when Samuel came to anoint a new king and when the army of Israel was fighting the Philistines.

I babysat my little brother while he was floating in a basket in the river.

When I was young, my parents accidentally left me behind in Jerusalem. I went to the Temple and waited for them to come back and find me.

When I was just a few years old, my mother left me in Shiloh to serve God with Eli the priest. She visited and brought me a new coat every year.

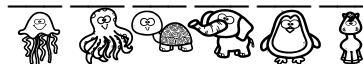

My parents were REALLY old when I was born - my dad was 100 and my mom was around 90 years old.

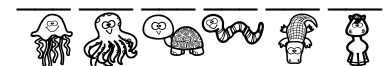

I had a red, hairy twin, and we didn't get along very well. That was partly my fault - I stole his blessing from our dad.

My mom and grandma taught me the Bible as a child. Later, I became like a son to the Apostle Paul.

I never was a child.

When I was a baby, my mom placed me in a basket in a river. Later, I was adopted by Pharaoh's daughter.
